

Thursday, February 12, 2009

DOTHANEAGLE

dothaneagle.com

Real people. Real news.

75 cents

Testimony: Soldier's son suffered severe injuries

Ebony Horton

ehorton@dothaneagle.com

dence to continue through court proceedings against him. Federal authorities charged Fisher with involuntary manslaughter the day after Dedrick Jr. died last week.

With both a civilian and an appointed military attorney at his side, Fisher held his head down and wrote in a notebook while pictures of his dead child were passed among legal counsel. Dedrick Jr.'s mother, Eliana Arias Fisher, did not show up to whether there was enough evi-testify.

A Fort Rucker special agent said during the hearing that Fisher admitted he was irritated when he shook Dedrick Jr. at least once in November before rushing him to a military police officer and saying the child choked.

Children's Hospital Dr. Melissa Peters said via phone on Wednesday that Dedrick Jr. suffered injuries not consistent with being shaken just once.

See SOLDIER, 3A

Maj. Susana Watkins, a deputy judge advocate at Fort Rucker, speaks Wednesday in front of the Soldier Service Center.

Max Oden/moden@dothaneagle.com

Soldier
continued from 1A

Peters said she believed the child suffered critical traumatic brain injury and needed a tracheotomy.

Dedrick Jr. also had bruises on his arms and what appeared to be finger nail pinches between his fingers, which might have been from someone checking to see if the child was still responsive, Peters said.

Fisher Sr.'s civilian attorney, Victor Kelley, said he believed there was no evidence supporting an involuntary manslaughter charge enough evidence is present to continue with the charge against Fisher.

Barclay is then expected to decide whether to forward the case to a general court martial who, within 120 days of the recommendation, would be expected to hear the case before determining Fisher Sr.'s fate. If convicted, Fisher could face dishonorable discharge and up to 10 years in a federal prison.

"You can see this case has been aggressively pursued by legal counsel, and that there is a system of checks and balances," Fort Rucker Public Affairs Officer Lisa Eichhorn said.

Graveside funeral services for Dedrick Jr. were Monday in Greenville, Miss. It was not immediately known whether Fisher attended.

Thursday, February 12, 2009 • DOTHAN EAGLE • 3A